

Message

From: [REDACTED]
Sent: 1/28/2014 12:35:10 PM
To: Tom Goldstein [REDACTED]
Subject: RE: Wire

Yes that too :)

-----Original Message-----

From: Tom Goldstein
Sent: Tuesday, January 28, 2014 3:29 PM
To: [REDACTED]
Subject: Re: Wire

Yup, it's unfortunate. But we always play completely by the rules.

> On Jan 28, 2014, at 3:28 PM, [REDACTED] wrote:

>
> Yes, I know. Sorry for not being clear, I was only referring to those that are marked as personal distributions. The accountant just wanted me to make sure you were aware of the consequences, but I guess you are, so we can just drop it.

>
> -----Original Message-----

> From: Tom Goldstein
> Sent: Tuesday, January 28, 2014 3:27 PM
> To: [REDACTED]
> Subject: Re: Wire

>
> This isn't the final list. I had sent you an email back explaining which are personal and which aren't.

>
>> On Jan 28, 2014, at 3:25 PM, [REDACTED] wrote:

>>
>> Our accountant called to confirm that all these payments are meant to be personal distributions, since they will end up costing you around $220k in taxes (as opposed to services, where they are tax deductible). I said yes but that I would check.

>>
>> -----Original Message-----

>> From: [REDACTED]
>> Sent: Tuesday, January 21, 2014 1:55 PM
>> To: Tom Goldstein
>> Subject: RE: Wire

>>
>> Cool. And so I imagine that is also the case for [REDACTED]

>>
>> For the blog, can we call [REDACTED] bonus or the competition winnings personal distributions?

>>
>> -----Original Message-----

>> From: Tom Goldstein
>> Sent: Tuesday, January 21, 2014 1:32 PM
>> To: [REDACTED]
>> Subject: Re: Wire

>>
>> It's a personal distribution not a business expense. So it doesn't get deducted and we shouldn't need a 1099.

>>
>>> On Jan 21, 2014, at 1:30 PM, [REDACTED] > wrote:

>>>
>>> Do you have his contact information? I need to reach out to find out an address and SSN for a 1099. Or should he be considered exempt (perhaps he is not a US citizen or the payments were expense reimbursements).

>>>
>>> -----Original Message-----

>>> From: Tom Goldstein
>>> Sent: Wednesday, August 14, 2013 9:37 AM
>>> To: [REDACTED]
>>> Subject: Wire

>>>
>>> Wire $40k from the firm to

>>>
>>> [REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

>>>